The True Story OF Woodrow Wilson

By David Lawrence

CHAPTER IV.
What Mr. Wilson thought of his contemporaries—Hull and Roosevelt—Their methods of dealing with Congress and his own.

Woodrow Wilson was probably the only President of the United States who approached the office of the chief executive long before he entered public life. The theory of government was his hobby. As a professor in Princeton university on constitutional government, his lectures were voted by their students year in and year out the most popular in the country.

Little did I dream as I took notes with my classmates in the spring of 1909 that exactly four years later, the professor before us would be actually applying his doctrines of government in the White House and that we would be reporting them for the Associated Press.

What was said in the lecture room in those days was by common consent a private affair. Reporters were never present. And for that reason Dr. Wilson was as free with his comments on current news as if he were in the seclusion of his own home.

In 1912, when Woodrow Wilson had just been inaugurated after a record-breaking vote. The new President was beginning to struggle with the tariff. Aldrich was in command of the United States senate and Cannon was enthroned in the House of Representatives. Dr. Wilson would read to us a paragraph or two from the daily newspaper giving the gist of Washington dispatches on the legislative situation and would make his comments thereon.

"Nobody in Congress," he used to say again and again, "represents the national will. Every member of the

Farm Bureau Official Information

PROGRESS IS MADE IN T. B. CAMPAIGN

State Estimates Tuberculosis
Takes Annual Tax of 40
Million from Farms.

Wisconsin's agriculture is keeping its stride steady in the fight against one of its worst enemies—tuberculosis—world-wide menace to cattle, hogs and poultry.

Considering it the most important disease of cattle in the northern part of the United States, federal authorities estimate that tuberculosis places an annual tax of $60,000,000 on the industry. This tuberculosis seems to be more prevalent in the cheese and butter-producing districts.

Bovine tuberculosis, according to E. G. Hastings, bacteriologist of the college of agriculture, who has just written a new circular on "The Disease of the Domestic Animal," was not known in Wisconsin before 1905.

In the present time, however, thousands of hogs are diseased.

Progress in Wisconsin

To date 16 Badger counties have completed their area test for bovine tuberculosis and 17 other counties have submitted their petitions to test. Results obtained indicate that the great majority of Wisconsin's cattle are healthy.

In Taylor county, where the test was completed in 1923, only 7.8 per cent of the herds had any reactors in them. Lincoln county, tested in 1920 and retested in 1923, showed reactors in 5.38 per cent of its herds.

"Besides the financial losses due to tuberculosis in domestic animals, it may be a grave danger to human health as well," says Hastings. "It is believed that adults acquire tuberculosis from infected meat and milk, but the data gathered in portions of the world in which bovine tuberculosis is widespread shows that it is responsible for about 10 per cent of the deaths due to tuberculosis among children under five years of age, and also for many cases of tuberculosis which do not end fatally but often leave their victims permanently scarred and crippled."

Loss on Swine

Over 50 per cent of the adult cattle in certain German states are tuberculous. At least 25 per cent of the milk cows of the eastern part of the United States are affected, and the same is true of United areas in the central states. In the south and west probably less than one per cent of the cattle are diseased. In Wisconsin the disease is more prevalent in the southern and eastern parts of the state, according to the bacteriologist.

The extent of bovine tuberculosis is less well known since most of the facts are gained by post-mortem examination of carcasses at the large packing centers to which hogs are shipped from widely scattered areas. One-third of the cattle from certain areas are tuberculous; while, from other places the percentage is very small. In general, the disease compares in its prevalence with bovine tuberculosis to which it is supposed to owe its origin.

Tuberculosis of poultry is found in all parts of this country and probably is as extensive in the newer regions as in the older. Its distribution is not related to bovine tuberculosis.

DOLLAR DAY COWS MAKING FARM PAY FOR WALWORTH MAN

By L. J. MERRILL

Theodore Kugel, Darion, has interesting figures on his two grade Holstein cows. These cows were found in the latter part of September, carried for an ordinary farm manner, and their milk sent to the Darion commodity. For October the commodity paid $1.00 per hundredweight.

December, $60.40, at $2.28 per hundredweight; January, $66.75, at $2.33 per hundredweight.

The average butterfat test has been 3.4 per cent.

These cows are only medium-sized.

They have been fed on a ration of alfalfa and clover mixed hay with seven pounds of grain ground oats, ground barley, and from one to two pounds of oil meal.

These returns are better than $1 per day per cow. How many farmers are there who can show as good returns?

A great many men have herds that produce less than one-half of this and at greater cost.

This is what can be done under good management.

There is no question but what Mr. Kugel can make money even at low price milk with this sort of a commodity. It is a thing which every dairyman must work for. True, it is hard to get all cows in a large herd as good as these two, but it can be done by systematic cow testing, advertising, and proper feeding and breeding.

Lime Holds Farmers

Lime-rich soils hold their tillers; lime-poor soils lose them.

The lime supply in the soil bears a direct relation to land abandonment.

This was brought out in a meeting recently of the Michigan Soil Survey Association at Clio.

With reference to land abandonment in Michigan, the statement was made that in no case has a farm on lime-rich soil been abandoned.

On the contrary, abandonment takes place and most rapidly on the most lime-deficient soil and decreases on other types successively poorer in this all important constituent.

These observations are practical evidences of the essentiality of the lime constituent for a prosperous and permanent agriculture.

ORDER SEED CORN EARLY, URGES MOORE

Madison—Aro Wisconsin farmers asked at the switch?

Unless they wake up very soon and switch some of the shipments of good corn which are going out of the state back onto Badger farms, the 1924 corn crop will severely suffer.

"The demands we are having for seed corn from outside parties is four or five times as great as those we are receiving from our own farmers," declares R. A. Moore, agriculturalist of the College of Agriculture.

MORRISON SPEAKS ON STOCK FEEDING

Hundred Farmers Hear Lecture
at New High School—
Soybeans Next Subject.

Economical production of milk, beef, pork and mutton through intelligent feeding proved an interesting subject for 100 rural citizens at the third "short course" class Thursday evening for farmers at the new Janesville high school. Prof. F. B. Morrison, Madison, Wisconsin College of Agriculture, spoke on "New Discoveries of Livestock Feeding."

The American farmer, it was declared, has a long road to go before the maximum production of milk or meat is obtained from his flocks and herds. The modern method of farming calls for close concentration of stock, with little chance of the stock grazing to obtain grass and minerals, once natural in their diet.

Consequently diseases have arisen from improper nutrition which must be supplied through balanced rations of the right kind and in the right proportion.

The lecture dealt with the results of many feeding trials, and instead of complex feeds, simple rations that were within the reach of any good farmer were recommended.

The use of dairy products and legume hay, especially alfalfa, was championed as being the most effective way to supply the vitamins, minerals and essentials for cattle, horses, swine and sheep.

White Corn vs. Yellow

Corn and dairy products, such as skim milk, whole cream, butter-milk, were taken as the foundation of food for feed.

Limed mixed with turnip juice was declared to be the most valuable as a supplement.

White corn was declared to be of lower value than yellow corn, lacking vitamins, feed with alfalfa would equal yellow corn in feeding value, the alfalfa making up the necessary element lacking in white corn.

All stock should have plenty of salt, with the exception of poultry.

Potassium or sodium iodine was recommended for dairy cows throughout the gestation period and

NEW CITIZENS TO APPEAR SATURDAY

Naturalization Court to Be Held—Circuit Court Term Opens Monday.

Calendars for the March term of the Rock county circuit court starting here Monday, March 3 at 2 p.m., are ready for distribution at the clerk of courts office, the court house. There will be a naturalization hearing before Judge Grinmar here on Saturday. This is the last date in Rock county at which service men of the World war holding honorable discharges can obtain full citizenship papers without complying with the usual regulations. Presentation of the discharge is sufficient for citizenship. The time limit for the granting of papers to service men without the fees and filing of first papers expires in March, being five years after the last troops were returned from foreign service.

The Green county term has been completed until April.

The criminal calendar are the easier cases. Fred Klisp, Dan McNamee, Tom Moerner, Ole Rosendo, charged with violation of the prohibition laws, David Weir and John O'Leary, charged with statutory offenses, Matthew Hammer, charged with assault, and Dan Einis, charged with violation of the pure food law.

It is expected one or more of the important civil cases will be selected for early trial. The calendar will be called next Monday afternoon.

HOLTON CASE IS TRIED AT ELKHORN

Controlling Ownership of Band Instrument Company to be Settled.

EVENING TO THE GAZETTE

Elkhorn—Briefs will be submitted by counsel in the trial of the suit of Claude Netherton, Chicago, against Frank Holton and the Frank Holton company, after which Judge Chester A. Fowler, Ponca City, Okla., will render his final decision.

The witness reported, when a telegram was read saying Palmer was on the witness stand, that Palmer was on the telephone for the interests of "the man at the Wardman Park hotel"—a term applied to Palmer in the telegrams.

The witness reported, when a telegram was read saying Palmer was on the telephone for the interests of "the man at the Wardman Park hotel"—a term applied to Palmer in the telegrams.

"I've not seen Mr. Hall since," said Palmer, "but Francis H. McAdoo, son of William G. McAdoo, had conferred with me regarding the committee and its trial before Judge Fowler has consumed three days and has attracted considerable attention among Elkhorn persons. Judge Fowler pointed out the points of law upon which the case will be decided.

Netherton, by his action in the circuit court which is the last in a long series of trials, is aiding for his benefit in contract and to determine the details of his contract entered into in March, 1921, by which he was to obtain ownership of $250,000 worth of stock of the Holton company, paying $50,000 down and the rest in installments, the defense offered by Holton being that Netherton grossly misrepresented his financial and other standing, and misappropriated funds of the company.

The plaintiff through the contract became secretary of the company and had a salary of $12,500, while Mr. Holton remained as president. Netherton was ousted as secretary by Mr. Holton, the latter testified, after he found out that Netherton had sold some of the Holton stock to Chicago men, that he had obligated the company by a note to a Chicago loan company with a personal guarantee of $50,000 of the company's money. He testified that Netherton instead of being wealthy as he had represented did not have any financial standing and was in debt. Edmund Kryl, a band leader of Chicago, substantiated Mr. Holton's charges that Netherton appropriated $6,000 of the company's funds, stating that the plaintiff had used this amount to pay the debt which he owed.

Netherton was a witness in his own behalf, testifying concerning the terms of the contract and the payment by him of $50,000 on his contract. Other witnesses were A. S. Little, J. Charlton, Lynn Sly for the defense and Ross Netherton for the plaintiff.

PALMER GRILLED BY COMMITTEE IN OIL INVESTIGATION

Sinclair and Hall to answer any questions pertinent to the inquiry, that was on December 12.

"I've not seen Mr. Hall since," said the witness, "but when a telegram was read saying Palmer was on the telephone for the interests of 'the man at the Wardman Park hotel'—a term applied to Palmer in the telegrams."

The witness reported, when a telegram was read saying Palmer was on the telephone for the interests of "the man at the Wardman Park hotel" — a term applied to Palmer in the telegrams.

"Just Be Careful!"

Senator Dill read another message in which McLean told Major that "on account of Palmer acting for other parties, you must be extra careful."

"I don't know any other parties I was acting for," replied Senator Walsh.

"I don't know. I haven't had any communication with anybody in the oil case except this simple matter of acting for McLean. I assumed that what he told me was the truth."

The former attorney general said his law firm did not represent any oil companies, but he stated that he had "tried some oil cases in Oklahoma." Senator Walsh asked if he had any communication with Mr. Stack about his interest as one consideration to get Mr. Doheny out as a competitor. "I'll suggest another consideration—that Stack got this interest because he could apply influence to officials in the state," said Senator Dill.

Senator Walsh asked if the Pioneer company in effect had not "compromised" with H. P. Sinclair to abandon its claim, thus giving Stack a right to claim damages from Sinclair.

"Exactly," Schuyler replied.

"The Pioneer company, in other words," Chairman Lenroot said, "sold to Mr. Sinclair whatever right about the obligation you thought Hall and Sinclair were under to answer our questions."

The question as to whether Hall would have to tell where he got certain money, Mr. Palmer explained. "I think Zevely said that money came from McLean. I told him I thought he would have to answer."

Note: Investigation.

"So far as Doheny and Stack were concerned, it was just that they sought a lease just as anybody might have sought a lease had the government decided to drill off-set wells."

"That is right," replied Schuyler. "Washington Attorney General Daugherty will be satisfied with the results of the Goldwater-Subdaneau convention from Ohio to the Republican national convention regardless of the fight upon him in the Senate and regardless of whether he remains in the cabinet."

"Mr. Doheny, by his deal with the Pioneer company, eliminated himself as a possible competitor for a 'Ponca Dome lease,'" Senator Walsh went on.

"He tired of it and withdrew," Schuyler said.

"As a practical man, let me tell you what I think about it. It's not good to be a lawyer for oil companies but he stated that he had "tried some oil cases in Oklahoma." Senator Walsh asked if he had any communication with Mr. Stack about his interest as one consideration to get Mr. Doheny out as a competitor. "I'll suggest another consideration—that Stack got this interest because he could apply influence to officials in the state," said Senator Dill.

Senator Walsh asked if the Pioneer company in effect had not "compromised" with H. P. Sinclair to abandon its claim, thus giving Stack a right to claim damages from Sinclair.

"Exactly," Schuyler replied.

"The Pioneer company, in other words," Chairman Lenroot said, "sold to Mr. Sinclair whatever right he told me was the truth."

Would Show Activity.

"I don't know," the witness said, "except that there is a tendency for employees to try to show the boss they are very active. I certainly didn't have anybody working on Senator Walsh as the messages said."

Senator Walsh then put in, "Tell us what you know about the messages."

"I don't know," the witness said.

Mr. Coolidge Starts an Investigation of His Own.

The president has started a little investigation of his own and turned over the job to the senate committee on public lands, the same one that is looking up the evidence in the Teapot Dome collaborative corruption. Mr. Coolidge wants to know what happened to the land grant given to the Northern Pacific road and whether there is to be a penalty fixed for the road for not complying with the contract made with the government some 60 years ago. The railroad company was given 40 million acres to construct the road and was not to sell at more than $2.50 an acre. Then it turned back to the United States government several million acres of worthless land and received in exchange the finest lands in Oregon and Washington. Also the road failed, the president says, to build 1,500 miles of road within the time specified.

There are other details of the road's failure to comply with the contract and the president thinks it is time to find out about it and make the railroad disgorge the price it received for the lands. The road was to have the cost of construction, or 70 millions but it has sold 136 million dollars worth of lands.

There never was a better time than right now to get at the bottom of the grant and see how the government has been beaten out of its right due in this grant.

One does not understand how with all the hot air turned loose there, the weather can get so cold in Washington.

Not in a Political Scramble.

The Bradhead Independent-Register, says of the campaign for circuit judge in its current issue:

Judge Grinnan, when asked repeatedly for cards or other forms of advertising, matter by his friends, repeatedly has stated that he was depending upon but one means of reelection, his seventeen years' record in office. Of course by that he means that he is depending upon the good opinion the people of his district have formed of his record. We are aware that there is some opposition to his reelection, and we have been informed that in some cases that opposition comes from those who have felt a sting from sentences imposed in cases in which they have been directly interested. We doubt whether many would care to advance the argument that Judge Grinnan has been harsh in the pronouncement of sentences against offenders. It must always be borne in mind that in criminal cases the judge sentences after a man has had every chance in the world to present his side of a case and that a jury passes upon his guilt. Even at that, in nearly every case, Judge Grinnan has given less than the maximum sentence. He is a candidate for reelection in the confidence that his record is clean, and that the people by a large majority will return him for another full term.

The real question in reference to the circuit court is not important as to action on criminal cases. There is more civil litigation than criminal. In fact, in Rock county, the criminal cases are few, only those other than capital offenses, reaching the circuit court save on change of venue. In Jefferson and Green counties there are more criminal cases, since the lower courts have not been so well provided to care for the lesser criminal cases as in Rock. But on the whole, the number of criminal cases on each calendar makes the smaller part of the work of the court. There never will be a time perhaps when all parties to either criminal or civil actions will be satisfied with the results. But we do know that in the 12th circuit many thousands of dollars have been saved to litigants by the work of the judge in arranging for settlements without trial costs. Also it takes a knowledge of law and precedent to be a circuit court judge. It may further be mentioned that the number of cases taken to the supreme court from the 12th judicial district are never very numerous—nothing like in number those from some other circuits. Nor should the question of the judgeship be settled by any partisanship or factional politics, nor be decided by hostility of persons who have been to court and fancied they have failed to receive justice.

The finger of suspicion is getting wobbly from pointing at so many statesmen.

Saving Lives and How.

Eventually we shall have to adopt some system to stop motor car deaths. There are some 15 million motor vehicles in the United States. In a few years more there are likely to be at least 50 per cent more. Their potentiality for death is admitted. In handling the subject of safety the American Society of Engineers has proposed these remedies:

A jail sentence and license forfeiture for drunk drivers.

Trial on charges of murder for all drivers responsible for fatal accidents.

Rigid physical and mental examination of all applicants for licenses to drive motor vehicles.

Before we can put that code into practice we shall have to nationalize the motor laws. But it is worth preparing for because there is bound to be a modification of the state laws at the next session of the legislature in this particular.

A Missouri editor has discovered that people not only sleep and work eight hours according to the set rule but that they do them at the same time.

POLITICIANS UP IN THE AIR

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—With the first of the 1924 presidential primaries immediately at hand there is a greater degree of uncertainty in the national political situation than has been known since the campaign of 1912. When they give their real opinions, which they will do only when they are speaking privately and not for street quotation, leaders of both the major parties, are substantially agreed that this is a year when anything may happen.

Speaking publicly, of course, these same leaders will undertake to forecast definitely and with all seeming confidence just what will happen to their favored candidates or parties. But such statements are to be likened to the whistling of the small boy going through the woods in the dark, who whistles, not because he is happy, but to keep up his courage.

To say that the politicians generally are up in the air would be a mild characterization of their state of mind. Indeed it would not be going far afield to say that they are panicky.

The reason for this is the uncertainty as to the popular reaction to the recent sensational disclosures and developments in connection with the oil scandal, the inquiry into the affairs of the Veterans' Bureau and various other investigations that are impending.

The political effect of these revelations can not be measured or estimated because as yet there is no gauge. The people have had no opportunity to show by their ballots what they think of "such goings on," and while they are awaiting some such expression as the polls the politicians can only guess and hope.

Then there is the added uncertainty as to what additional revelations there may be further to unsettle the general situation. This is perhaps the most disturbing factor of all. Political leaders like generals of armies or captains of industry, when they know the worst, can plan and deal with it to the best of their ability, but when the worst may be yet to happen they are utterly at a loss as to what to plan or do. They may determine upon a given line of action and then, overnight, have all their plans knocked into a cocked hat.

It is quite possible, also, that the public may be unsettled in its mind as to what to think or do. Individuals here and there may have clearly defined ideas as to what should be done, but the people as a whole may be withholding judgment or may be confused as to how the scandals should influence their political action.

Admittedly the developments to date have added to confusion in that respect, for it has been shown that men of both parties have been involved in the questionable transactions that are being investigated. It is equally true that responsible leaders in both parties are insisting that there shall be no let-up in the inquisitorial proceedings until the public knows all the facts, and that those guilty of wrong-doing, if there be such, shall be prosecuted vigorously and without fear or favor.

Shrewd observers of the trend of politics are predicting now that the presidential primaries will reflect comparatively little of the popular sentiment with regard to the oil mess and similar sensations. They say that there may be more or less of a demonstration in one or the other of the national conventions but that the public as a whole will not get in its deadly work, if it is to be delayed, until the votes are cast at the election next November. One or two candidates for presidential nomination, however, may find that the new developments will affect the primary vote they receive, according to this theory, but even at that it is not expected that any candidacy will stand or fall on that issue.

Were it possible for public sentiment to center on one man who had been most prominent or most instrumental in exposing crookedness in public offices or the maladministration of public affairs it might be different, but there have been many cooks in the confection of the delectable broth thus far served. It is true that Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, is the author of the resolution that brought about the oil investigation, and that Senator Walsh, of Montana, has done more than any other member of the investigating committee to get at the dregs in the trap.

But La Follette is a republican and Walsh a democrat, so there is no partisan advantage here, and, moreover, La Follette has not indicated that he is a candidate for president, while Walsh has not only said that he is not but has announced his support of one of the leaders of his party.

A year or more ago there was discussion of the possibility that a situation might develop in the 1924 campaign such that there would be a non-election at the polls, and now there is more talk than ever along that line. Should neither of the major parties elect a majority of the presidential electors next November the election of the president will be thrown into the house of representatives and the election of the vice-president into the senate.

Such a contingency depends, of course, upon the development of a third party of formidable strength but which does not gain all its strength, or substantially all of it, at the expense either of the republicans or democrats. In 1912 the progressives carried enough states and had a sufficient large number of electoral votes ordinarily to have thrown the election of the president into the house, but it happened that the progressives took practically all those votes from the republicans and the democrats slipped through with an overwhelming vote in the electoral college, although polling a minority of the popular vote.

There will be one or more minor parties in the field this year, but as yet there has been nothing that resembles what would be called a real "third party movement." This, however, may well come about as sequel to events either in the republican or the democratic national convention. Indeed, it is within the range of possibilities in these parlous days of politics that there will be bolts or splits in both conventions, and something of that sort may prove to be the aftermath of the scandals now engrossing public attention.

Henry Ford's name, like Banquo's ghost, will not down when talk of a new or independent political movement is heard, and the Detroit captain of industry may find it necessary to repeat his declaration that he does not aspire to the presidency but instead favors the election of President Coolidge.

And when she announces to her husband that she has had her hair bobbed.

They are getting peculiar in Washington when police order more clothes on a chorus in a play and over on Capitol Hill they are insisting on truth being naked.

It does look as though Mr. McAdoo was getting a good sized campaign fund ready when he was found out.

Mr. Daugherty may think he is like the boy who stood on the burning deck but he should remember that the boy perished with the ship.

In this sad and degenerate world one thinks of the awfulness of unequal distribution. Most of the volcanoes which spit fire and hot ashes are in the tropical regions while they are needed up at the North Pole.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST.

A BABY IN THE LIBRARY.
What enters she for Stevenson
Or Lafcadio Hearn or Poe,
Or my old friends one by one,
Which I love and cherish so?
Who is Riley that he may
Come between her and her whim?
She will tweak his nose in play—
That's how much she cares for him.

Gone the peace I pledged to share them,
Good old Friends will share my room,
I feel like a child again,
Bringing them unto their doom.
Yet I think they smile themselves,
As at last they smil'd before
When she tugs them from their shelves
And they topple to the floor.

When on tip-toe there she stands
Tugging at their coats and vests
And with quick and elated hands
Studles Riley as he rests,
Pulls Lafcadio's nose and rolls
All the wise men on the floor.
I believe those gentle souls
Chuckle at her cry for more.

Here's a scratch on Bryant's face
Widder's clothes are sadly mended,
Stevenson can show a place
Where her sticky hands were pressed;
But a sweat the other night
All these great men laughed aloud
Thus to share a baby's delight,
And were really very proud.

HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, MARCH 4, 1924.

According to astrology Venus in malefic aspect dominates the planetary government of this day, Jupiter and Mercury exercise an influence mildly friendly.

It is a day most as most unfavorable to all the professional and business ambitions of workers.

During this sway theaters may suffer from lack of support or from financial difficulties.

Women are subject under this direction of the stars to most ambitious dreams, but these visions are not likely to become realities.

The rule indicates much jealousy between men and women in regard to proficient honors.

Jupiter exercises a stimulating influence in business matters which should be satisfactory as the day advances.

There is an aspect that may tend to seriousness, viewing life, to worry and even melancholy. Rest and recreation should be the antidote.

Mercury gives promise of accuracy in accounts and exactness in financial responsibility.

It is an auspicious time for all sorts of publicity, and should bring good fortune to political aspirants as well as to all men who seek the favor of the people.

Agitated earthquakes, tidal waves, cloud bursts and seismic disturbances are prognosticated. The spring will be marked by many convulsions of nature and severe storms.

Such an increase during certain aspects indicated for a month will bring much anxiety and love complications which may be dangerous.

There is a warning for the President of Uruguay who may meet with serious troubles this spring.

Portugal continues under a threatening rule.

The year is to be even more eventful in world affairs than 1923.

Persons whose birthday it is may expect changes and travel in the coming year. There should be unusual circumspection in social relations of all sorts.

Children born on this day may be restless, unquiet and very fond of company, but these subjects of Pisces probably will be able to win success, for they should have fine constructive ability and a love of perfection.

LARME ANCIENT

"They call me old," the palm tree said,
With still tooss of his feathered head.

"What if I am? I have seen all of life
Battle and murder and sudden strife.

Soon great cities laid to waste
As the conquering hordes swept down in haste.

Watched the Nile with its flow and ebb.

When Pap recovered his painful breath and squirmed into a sitting position, he saw that both horses were tied to an arid, and that Charlie Shale was standing in the middle of the trail, coiling a rope.

Pap made a movement. Observing which the agent made remark to himself that he had removed Pap's weapons while Pap was struggling to regain his breath.

"I got his gun too," amplified Shale, flicking a lean thumb in the direction of the unconscious Sim. "You can keep sitting still."

"What do you think you are?" demanded Pap.

"I am the fool-killer," was the modest reply.

"You're a liar! You're the fool. I tell you again; this is the sickest day's work you ever did. I'll get you for this."

"Now don't be an idiot, Pap. Be very calm. Take it easy. Just make believe you haven't a minute to live and act according. Pray, sing or speak a piece. I'll be ready for you in a minute."

Sim Hawkins sat up and groaned wretchedly. He put his hand to his head. The fingers came away red. He held them before his face and regarded them stupidly.

Only the skin broken. Shale comforted him. "You ain't really hurt to speak of. You ain't took your gun away. You've got a six-shooter. You can crawl Sim? Then join Pap. That's it. Never mind buzzing each other. We all know how affectionate you are. I was just asking your pa to pick out the shoulder he didn't want plugged?" "Gimme a gun and I'll show you!" snarled Pap.

Dinner Stories

The man of the house finally took all the dislodged umbrellas to the reporter's. Next morning on his way to his office, when he got up to leave the street car, he absently laid hold of the umbrella belonging to a woman beside him, for he was in the habit of carrying one. The woman cried "Stop thief!" rescued her umbrella and covered the man with shame and confusion.

That same day he stopped at the man's house, received a slight of his umbrella and left restored. As he entered a street car with the unwrapped umbrella tucked under his arm he was horrified to behold gazing at him the lady of his morning adventure. Her voice came to him charged with a withering scorn:

"Huh! Had a good day, didn't you?"

"Can you run an engine?" asked Mike, a roundhouse workman, of the yardmaster.

"No," he answered; "can you?" "Can't run an engine," sniffed Mike in derision. "If there's anything Orlie either do all day long it is to run an engine. Huh! Can I run an engine?"

"Suppose," suggested the yardmaster, "you run that engine into the house."

"All right, OI kin do that same," Mike bluffed, and he climbed up on the handcar, the biggest handcar he could see, and pulled it open. Sim'z she went into the roundhouse. Mike raw the bumpers ahead, and, guessing what would happen, reversed the lever clear back. Out she went—in again—out again.

"Thee the yardmaster yelled, "I thought you said you could run an engine."

"In the morning," says one who has felt the new desire, "you want to jump into your sport clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint Ease: They call this wonder drug salve substituted for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff indicated rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, stainless prescription that in just a few months has proved to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the backs taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense.

All good druggists have a big supply of it and druggists everywhere report a big demand.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Fried Beef—Take one quarter pound round beef, two eggs beaten, two tablespoons milk, salt and pepper. Mix together and fry until you would scramble eggs until of a soft consistency.

Croton—Use the end slices of bread cut into three-quarter inch squares and browned in the oven. Keep these on hand all the time, for when you are eating them with any soup, it is necessary to mix it up a panful in the oven when ever it is being used for other purposes.

Drop Sponge Cookies—Take one cup sugar, one egg, four tablespoons milk, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, vanilla. Drop from a teaspoon on greased sheet. When baked will spread. These are especially good for children.

Baked Calf Heart—After thoroughly cleaning two calf hearts, boil them slowly in salted water until tender (about one hour). Make a dressing of one cup of dried bread crumbs, sage, salt, and pepper.

Stuff the heart and fill the openings in the heart with the dressing. Make up remainder into small balls. Place the hearts and balls of dressing into an uncovered glass baking dish, add one cup of stock and brown in oven 20 to 30 minutes while potatoes are baking. Escalloped or au gratin potatoes would be equally delicious.

Dr. Thacher's Custard—Cook in double boiler one pint of milk two heaping tablespoons minute tapioca, one-half cup of sugar and one-half teaspoon salt, until tapioca is transparent. Add beaten yolks of one egg and one cup of chipped dates. Remove from the fire and when partly cooled, fold in the stiffly beaten white of one egg. Add vanilla to taste. Serve very cold with sugar and cream.

Bad Salts—An inexpensive and easily made a delightful after-dinner drink, which everyone can take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. It all means far more than just examining your kidneys at least twice a year.

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water.

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggish filter off only part of the waste and poison the body. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, rheumatic liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, blindfold disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, free from pain or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Bad Salts from any reliable pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may thank you.

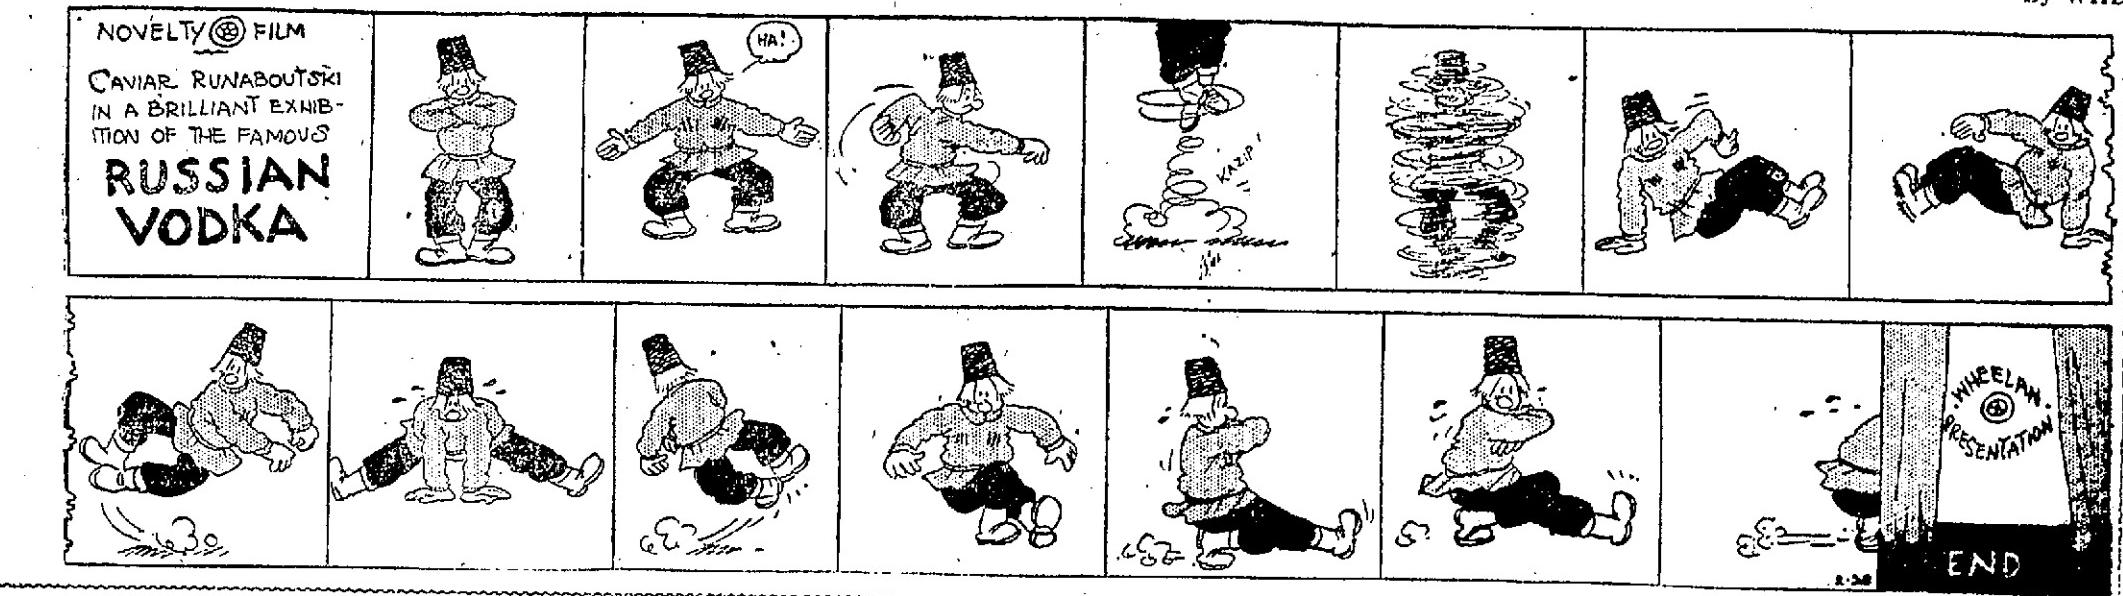

The famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not help in the field of the doctor.

One, due to teething, and it will be over before you get an answer to this.

But—it may be because the baby is not getting enough to satisfy her, and this seems more than true when you say that she wants to nurse all night. Babies as old as she is who are fed during the night are always poor sleepers and their midday daytime food is not sufficient.

Of course the worst thing you can do is to try and tire her out, which only makes her more nervous and wakeful. The proper procedure is to give her part of a bottle of milk following the 3 o'clock and 6 o'clock feedings, giving twice of half milk and half water, and letting the baby take three or four ounces of this. I feel sure that this will help the sleeping problem, if you are careful of all the other things that make for wakefulness.

I am going to try bathe her before I put her back to bed, but she won't like that. Can I give her a washable wetted water? Can you send me a pamphlet on feeding the baby?

Answer—I shall be happy to send you the leaflet if you will write for stamped envelope. The baby's condition may be merely a temporary thing to endure. If she can do something to have them with her, that is a different proposition, but she should not let their childhood go by without a mother's care. They need her and she needs them.

I can make good salary, but that does not by any means compensate for the loss of my child's companionship. I hope "Unhappy Mother" resolves to make the best of her unhappy home surroundings.

BREADWINNING MOTHER.

Your letter will help others besides "Unhappy Mother." There are many unhappy mothers who will tell what you have to say, and they will look at things in a different light and will feel that after all they are blessed in being able to enjoy the companionship of their children. Your letter may save some unhappy mother from taking a false step which would deprive her of that blessed companionship. Thank you for your contribution.

HUSBAND FLIRTS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am 23 years old and have been married four years. I like my husband and he seems to like me. He is very good and lets me have everything I want, but he has one fault. He flirts with other women when he is with me and when I tell him about it he says he is just looking at them. Of course it is not us and I know better. Do you think he likes me the way he should when he does that? I don't.

Do you think I should pay more attention to other men? I am no longer young.

—LITTLE EYES.

It is cheap of your husband to flirt with other women. Since he is good to you and seems to love you, however, you have no cause to worry. You are making a mistake in permitting your husband to be unhappy when your husband is good to you. I certainly would not advise you to flirt with other men in hopes of having your husband flirt with women. Of course it would be all right for you to be cordial to the men you know, but do not imitate your husband.

I know whereof I speak. Nine years ago death snatched the breadwinner from our family after a year of happiness and left me with a tiny baby to battle the world. Don't "Unhappy Mother" ever voluntarily accept the falsehood that it was true upon me. I thank God that you are still with us.

In those days we had no companion of your children in those tender years, that you can personally care for them, bind up hurt fingers and listen to their childish chatter.

It is deplorable that the husband and father is as described and to live with him is deeply humiliating, but for the children's sake and her own peace of mind about them, my advice

ANOTHER VIEW

From Mrs. Thompson: Your advice to "Unhappy Mother" was good, but could you not have made just a little stronger your appeal for her to maintain the home for her children? No child should be without a home, and if "Unhappy Mother" is attempting the unavoidable role of a single mother, I am sure she would continue doing what she is doing to break up her home. No matter how trying conditions may be, they cannot be as trying as becoming both breadwinner and homemaker. The concern over your children while she is away from the home would be almost unbearable.

SEE QUICK SALE OF HOTEL BONDS

Canvass for Remainder of Pledges Will Start on Monday.

With committees named, territory mapped out and all the preliminary work done, the canvass for sale of the remaining part of the $100,000 of second mortgage securities for the new hotel will be active Monday and Tuesday night, it is expected to see the total sum needed fully pledged.

More than a half million dollars will be spent on the new hotel. When completed it will be the only really high class hotel between Peoria, Ill., and Madison, on the route of travel from the south to the northern resorts. It will not take long for the tourists to find this out and make Janesville the big stopping place on the map.

Madison is now building two hotels; Wauwan, Green Bay and Superior, one each. Fond du Lac, Winona, and Stevens Point have opened hotels. These are the delight of the traveling public and both Kenosha and Racine are planning new hotels. Ashland expects to finance one this summer.

The Gazette has told of the plans for the new hotel and as an investment for the city the citizens look upon it as being about the best that can be done.

A number of citizens are desirous in the hotel interest and the canvass for bond holders will be general.

MELEE ON FLOOR AS INVESTIGATION RESOLUTION IS UP

from the senate every mark of personal respect, and should not be curtailed in its customary privilege of naming the members of the special committee.

"Peculiar Circumstances"

Declaring there were "peculiar circumstances" demanding that the senate itself choose the investigating committee, Senator Wheeler said that Senator Willis, republican, Ohio, received a telegram from his spokesman for Mr. Daugherty, just gone to President Cummings and asked him to appoint certain senators.

"All I am asking," said Senator Wheeler, "is that we have a committee that will investigate the attorney general in a fair and impartial investigation. All I want to see is that we have a real investigation, and that we will not have anyone on the committee who will be constantly consulting with the man we are investigating."

Denton Statement

After Senator Wheeler had read a newspaper article quoting Mr. Daugherty as declaring that certain senators had resigned by to-night, he would have an important statement to publish. Senator Willis submitted a telegram from the attorney general disclaiming responsibility for any statement attributed to him.

"I have made no statement and authorized none since since I left Washington," he said.

Senator Willis explained he had talked with Senator Wheeler about the make up of the committee and had suggested several republicans as desirable members. He said he had mentioned Senator Borah of Idaho, Jones of Washington, Ernst of Kentucky and Shortridge of California.

"I submit," he said, "there was no intention or purpose to 'pack' the jury."

Senator Borah Declines

"Does the senator feel he has told the whole story?" asked Senator Wheeler. "Did I not ask you to select one man from the so-called progressives on the republican side, and that you would do?"

"The first name mentioned was that of Senator Borah, who is usually considered fairly progressive," retorted Senator Borah.

He added, however, that Senator Borah had declined to serve.

"Did you talk with the attorney general about the committee?" asked Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas.

"Yes," said Senator Willis. "It was discussed. I told him what the usual procedure was."

"Is it customary to let the man on trial select the jury?" pursued the Arkansas senator.

"Certainly not, nor was that suggested or thought of," shouted Senator Willis. "The senator, if he likes, may judge another's motives by his own."

Many Hot Clashes

The questions directed at Senator Willis during numerous interruptions led repeatedly to fiery clashes which drew demonstrations from the gallery. Speculators were twice warned by the chair that they must be silent.

Senator Willis asked if there was an impropriety in an inquiry by Mr. Daugherty regarding the prospective committee personnel.

"And how senators stood?" said Senator Caraway.

"There was no inquiry of that kind," retorted Senator Willis.

Senator Borah then charged that Senator Willis "wanted to pack the committee."

"I did not," Senator Willis said.

"It is false."

" Didn't you suggest names?"

"I suggested the names of several senators whom I thought would be efficient and faithful."

"Faithful to the attorney general."

"That statement is false," Senator Willis thundered.

"I repeat that there has been no effect on the part of any one to pack a jury in behalf of the attorney general," said Senator Willis.

A WONDER OF SCIENCE

A visualization of helium particles as expressed by G. F. Morrell, English scientific artist.

By CLARK KINNAIRD

Look at this picture carefully. It is one of the most interesting ever made which visualizes the existence of atoms.

Since before the day of Socrates, the great thinker of ancient times, it has been a doctrine that the physical universe (or, as sometimes taught, the whole universe, both physical and mental) is composed of simple, individual and minute particles or atoms. An atom, according to atomic theory, is the smallest particle of an element which can exist either alone or in combination with similar particles of the same or a different element.

Now each atom is held to be a universe in itself.

In this picture, prepared by G. F. Morrell, an English scientific artist, helium particles are shown bombarding a screen of zinc-sulphide. Each atom, which otherwise would be invisible on striking the screen is seen to explode and produce the flash of star-like light shown. The atoms are a piece of pitch blonde, and their size is shown by the white specks. They are invisible to the eye.

It is with the aid of these particles, flying at the rate of some 15,000 miles a second that physicists make their wonderful discoveries, and to a certain extent force other atoms to part with their energy. (A physicist is a person who studies the fundamental phenomena of life, and are explicable on purely chemical and physical principles; physics is that branch of science dealing with matter and motion in the physical world, i.e., mechanics, heat, electricity, light and sound, but dealing only with those phenomena involving matter, matter involving no changes in chemical composition.)

The ultimate aim of the large part which is held to be a universe in itself, of the actual instruction received, is a training for citizenship, which is the newest and most important step forward in educational progress. It is opposed to the old idea that pupils were simply taught the academic subjects, were granted diplomas and given credit of the work then recognized as being adequately educated to take their places in a community, though they were unacquainted with its ways, through never having received information on that subject.

of the various organizations during the semester amounted to more than $3,000.

Officials are attempting to establish a system of standard assignments, by which the average student should not be compelled to study more than four nights per week, and then only one hour each night. More brilliant students are encouraged to study outside of school at all, according to Principal W. W. Brown. The new tendency is toward a long school day, with little or no study outside of school hours.

Many School Activities
Wider student participation in school activities is one of the most noticeable features since the new building has been completed. Pupils have taken part in almost every phase of school life through the organization of the senior high school cabinet, and the junior high school council, each consisting of a delegate from each advisory group. There is also a joint committee of the two bodies, which considers matters affecting both schools.

The main work of Principal Brown is in arranging classes, and something of the complexity of the work can be seen from the fact that there are now 270 classes meeting daily, and that none may conflict, either as to the rooms where they are to meet, with subjects which students plan on taking, or with the availability of teachers for their instruction.

200 in Bands.

For the first time since the opening of a high school in this city, there are full eight semesters of Latin, so that students may take up four years of that subject consecutively. Heretofore the last two years of the course have been given alternately, emphasizing being placed on the practical side of the subject. There are two large classes of beginners this semester.

Possibly the greatest progress, outside of the changes in methods of administration, is in the increase of student organizations. The band is the largest single organization in the school, with about 260 members, while the Latin club, which meets twice monthly, is the largest in that class of society.

Gymnasium Widely Used
Full advantage has been taken of the two large gymnasiums and swimming pools, but there are also present 24 classes of boys receiving physical education. Each boy spends one of his five weekly class periods in swimming. Out of 520 boys enrolled in the gym classes, there are 25 who cannot swim. There are also 40 who entered as seventh grade this semester, who cannot swim. There are 125 girls enrolled in swimming classes this semester, 75 in the senior high school and 64 in the junior.

Under the system in effect in the old high school building, only one male supervisor was kept, and her work was largely in the grade schools. Singing in the high school was for the most part a diversion, the girls club being the chief work. With the entrance of the building, a half-time supervisor, Mrs. Lyman Jackson, was engaged for the first semester, and since the opening of school in September, Miss Mable Showers has given her entire time to work among junior high students. Work has been made interesting as is shown by the fact that the subject was added to the curriculum this month. To chose to take it, in addition to theory, appreciation, and singing, which have been taught in the past, elementary harmony was added to the instruction offered this semester.

Weekly Paper Publishers

While an attempt was made to print a weekly paper in the old building, the effort was not entirely successful due probably to the lack of printing facilities, the high cost of printing, and no serious thought was given this matter until last April, when the first issue of the "Reflector" came out, and continued weekly until the end of the semester, in June. When school reopened, the paper was rechristened the "Blue J." and has since appeared regularly. The first "Phoebe" to be published will be in the new building will be our sometime this spring.

From 250 to 500 students eat their noon lunches in the cafeteria each day, and when the new equipment arrives, more students, as well as faculty, members, will buy their daily meals there. Meals are at present being prepared by the school's national cooking, consisting of 24 members. No attempt to serve regular meals was ever made in the old building, the dining room on the third floor being used for a class room during the year or preceding the entrance to the present structure, when conditions were over-crowded.

The janitorial force in the new building has been increased to seven men, while three men took care of the school, and six.

As more activities and departments are constantly established, the truth of the statement of the president of the board of education, Mrs. Helen Sutherland, in her remarks at the first commencement exercises, is more apparent. She said, "This place is a community in itself, with its government, its bank and its own band, and church and societies."

The ultimate aim of the large part which is held to be a universe in itself, of the actual instruction received, is a training for citizenship, which is the newest and most important step forward in educational progress. It is opposed to the old idea that pupils were simply taught the academic subjects, were granted diplomas and given credit of the work then recognized as being adequately educated to take their places in a community, though they were unacquainted with its ways, through never having received information on that subject.

AMERICANS BUY MARKS BY BUSHEL

Billions of Issues Are Sold to Collectors at Good Prices.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Liepzig.—Money collectors in Germany, like the stamp collectors, have been shell-hounds till this year. New notes, regular and otherwise, have poured on them from all sides. Thousands of issues of German marks which became worthless as currency within a few weeks of their appearance, have been accumulated by the money collectors whose only rivals in this respect were the gamblers men or the factories who sought the valuable marks merely for the paper.

Collector agents in Leipzig, Berlin and other German cities have done a land office business all summer and fall among their foreign clients, some of whom ordered marks by the pound. The United States, it is estimated, has taken tons of the paper notes to be sold in the streets by peddlers, or given away as premiums with a ten-cent order.

Collectors agents in Leipzig, Berlin and other German cities have done a land office business all summer and fall among their foreign clients, some of whom ordered marks by the pound. The United States, it is estimated, has taken tons of the paper notes to be sold in the streets by peddlers, or given away as premiums with a ten-cent order.

In addition to the regulation notes, from time to time, came other everywhere, some of them especially designed to give the collectors a thrill. These notes were good only in the districts issued. Thousands of them never reached the public at all because they passed directly into the hands of the collectors.

On top of all the money being turned out by the government in that as hundreds of presses could turn out the big German bills, lists, such as Krupp, Siemens and many others, issued marks with which to pay off their workmen. These notes, also gobbled up by the collectors, were acceptable as currency only in the immediate districts where the respective plants were situated.

But collectors were not the only ones interested. Many municipalities had been held by increasing numbers of gamblers, and are planning further moves in what the village masters, for their own amusement, prefer to call "high finance." By striking a bargain with collectors the municipalities, and some of the other issuing bodies, made a clear gain of substantial amounts by the sale of an entire issue, and the local government of currency was reduced to that extent. Many of these deals were open and above board, and the town or village benefited. It was, in substance, a lucrative form of indirect taxation, with the collectors being the chief taxpayers.

Thousands of the notes were apparently designed for the sole purpose of catching the eye of the collector, and the collector, in the United States, South America, China or Iforculia. Series after series were produced, only to be cancelled automatically after a time limit, thus avoiding any chance that the collectors might come back to the village masters and demand redemption in years to come when the owner would be on the fast again and not thinking of wasting time with turning out home made money.

DIXON OF MONTANA IS MENTIONED AS DENBY SUCCESSOR

In the handling of any animal, especially the horse, common-sense is an important factor. It is the lack of it that causes difficulty and much cruelty.

In the driving of horses, a quick-tempered, unreasonable driver may do much harm. Where a horse is doing its best, striking, jerking, or roughness is not only cruel and unnecessary, but also dangerous to the animal.

Lack of common-sense is often shown in the overloading of teams. No animals can do good work or stand up under the strain of overloading. It is unlawful and cruel, and injurious to the animals. Many a horse has had to be discarded before its time because of too heavy loads it had been compelled to draw.

When harnessed teams should be heavy, freight roads should be even for the animals, especially on up grades.

The proper harnessing of horses is important. Where harnessed so that the harness chafes or hurts the animal, it will be unable to render good service. This is especially true with regard to collar which do not fit properly, being either too large or too small. Many sore shoulders on horses are due to middling collars. It is unlawful to drive or work an animal with sore neck or shoulders.

Another form of cruelty is failing to shoe horses when roads are slippery or frozen and rough. No animal can pull well when slipping constantly.

It is in constant danger of falling, breaking a muscle, its legs and back and often causes lameness. The lameness may become permanent, causing the loss of the horse. Even during temporary lameness, the animal may not lawfully be driven.

Good sense in the treatment of horses may be shown in many other ways. When tied out in cold weather they should be blanketed. In cold weather bits should be warmed before being put into their mouths, and the bit should be taken off after drinking water. These should be fed regularly, watered often and given sufficient exercise. Stables should be clean, comfortable, and well ventilated.

By FRANK SINCLAIR
THIS is the parable of a schoolmaster. The School had a passing mark that was lower than that of the other schools round about the countryside. There came to the School a new Principal, a lover of clean Athletics and a Coach of Fame gained in performances of the Past. Then the Devil It occurred to the Master's Mind that it would be to the advantage of the School to let the Pupils thereof to know the Standards of Schools who raised to the Equal of its friendly Competitors. And so it was done, and it was well, until one day as the season of Books and Penalties drew to its close, the higher passing Marks proved a small few of the Children of the Elect and there was Confermentation.

THERE followed much discussion and much Argument, during which time the Principal was called upon to pass the backward pupils, even though they were not of the highest Order. The Board of Education, so this Parable goes, insisted that it be done, for was not one of their Tribe the Parent of Flunkers? And He must not suffer Humiliation. The Principal flared up, but it was of no avail. Being a disciple of the Wise, he then restored the Goods of the School to their former position that is to say, he lowered the Marks to where they had been before he had taken to the Seat of the Head of the School. And it was done and the Sheepskins were awarded, even unto the Uncertain.

AND THE DAYS of the Summer passed into the days of the Harvest, and it came Time for the Game of the Bush and the Ball. A new Coach gathered up the Reins and the School sped on with the Laurel of the Championship dangling in its Dreams. Few fell before its mighty Attack like the Chari before the Wind and their Jollification. But it came to pass that someone had broken the Records and found much a Player possessed of a Mark lower than the passing Mark of the previous Season's foremost and there was Protest. Now it was written that the Youth had passed the revised Grade. He served in good faith and served well, it is perhaps two years ago now. A Message was dispatched forthwith to the High Court Justices, who did ponder and did give the Lad a Clean Slate. Forsyth, it came about that the Methods of the School Board were given an Airing and neighboring Tribes were made Wise. What does it profit Board to gain a Gradient and lose the Confidence of its Constituents?

Select District Cage Meet Schools on Saturday

RECORDS SO CLOSE PLAY-OFF BATTLES MAY BE NECESSARY

High school basketball teams that will compete in the district tournaments, March 33, 34 and 35, will be selected on Saturday in the state. From early indications, it is going to be harder to make choices this year than ever in the past.

Twelve schools are in the running for selection at the Whitewater normal school district. It was announced by Prof. Paul Carlson, director of athletics. They are Janesville, Beloit, East Troy, Elkhorn, Madison Central, Stoughton, Palmyra, Williams Bay, Whitewater City, Whitewater Normal, Milton Union, and Richland Center.

Records Are Close.

Eight teams will be chosen from this group, and may be any, Mr. Carlson said, that it will be possible to choose only six of them Saturday.

The records are so close this year that it may be necessary to have elimination games," he declared. "If this is so, it will be the first time in the history of the Whitewater district that it has been necessary." There are some schools that have won and lost to the same team, thereby complicating matters."

Schools from which selections will be made for the Broadhead meet were announced Thursday afternoon by Carl Pfeister, in charge of that district. These are Oregon, Oregon, Montello, Montello, St. Croix, Montello, Lodi, New Glarus, Hollister, Broadhead, South Wayne and Verona.

Two Eliminations.

Two eliminations may be necessary for the Broadhead meet, though there are not yet certain. They may need to be played between Prairie du Sac and Holmen, and between Montello and Lodi.

Arrangements are going forward rapidly for both these meets. The greatest crowds in the history of the contests are expected to be drawn to the tourney halls.

Sixty schools will be invited to play in the state meet, which will be held at the University of Wisconsin the latter part of March.

The Bit of Evidence.

Permission has been granted to any business organization in Janesville one Chevrolet Superior Coupe in any manner of paint and make it can be carried out in conjunction with the advertising campaign, and the only restrictions are that we give this car to the organization from whom the Chevrolet Motor company will receive the greatest benefit in advertising.

"The Chevrolet Coupe being the best automobile and the Kiwanis club being the finest business organization in Janesville, it is only natural that we decided to give this car to the organization an opportunity to win this car."

"Knowing that several other organizations have donated prizes to the Kiwanis Bowling League, we have decided to give this Chevrolet Coupe to the individual making the highest score in one game, taking this into consideration rather than high average score, so that everyone may have the opportunity to win this wonderful car."

This score applies to the present bowling series.

Dunwiddie in Lead.

Allen Dunwiddie, with a score of 243, is in the lead. He made this big count a week ago.

Thursday night, the plasters of the organization attacked the wood with a keen of dynamite. After the smoke had cleared, Dunwiddie was still pretty. The highest was a 218 by Jimmy Crook, the general president of the Industrial Commercial league.

YEAR'S RESIDENCE REQUIRED FOR AID

Wisconsin Among States Still Clinging to Old Plan on Pensions.

Wisconsin joins other states in some respects and lags far behind in some provisions in a matter of legislation granting aid for the support of dependent children outside of institutions, according to an article on "Mothers' Pensions in the U. S." by Mrs. Florence Shown Hyde in the February number of Social Progress. Following are extracts from the article:

"The provisions for mothers' pensions, or allowances to other qualified guardians, reflect in all but five states the iron-bound tradition which is the basis of most of our relief legislation, and which does not recognize the obligation to extend aid to those who have not lived there. However, the law-makers of Indiana, Colorado, Michigan, Vermont and Connecticut have kicked over the old traces sufficiently to recognize that there may be a very good reason why it is to the advantage of the community to keep a home for the mother and the children out of orphanages, and that the happenings that misfortune comes their way a little in advance of having established a legal residence. Some states that permit a person to vote after six months' residence demand a residence of from one to three years on the part of applicants for pension allowances. In most states a person may move from state to another and vote after a three month's residence, but must be able to prove a year's residence in order to get any kind of charity relief."

Year's Residence Required

Wisconsin is listed as one of the countries on the part of a mother or other person applying for aid to support a dependent child. California, Colorado and Wisconsin allow aid to any competent person having the custody of a child. Wisconsin has some restrictions as to mothers that are eligible. Colorado appears to have the least regulations governing the granting of aid for the support of dependent children.

The eligibility of the person having the care of the child and the amount to be granted entirely to the juvenile court. It would seem that this is the ideal plan, and the only one that does not provide the giving of aid at least to the extent of the welfare of the child demands, i.e., the giving of such aid as may be adequate.

Juvenile Worker Helps

The so-called juvenile probation officer appointed by the juvenile court is evolving into a person whose time is largely given to investigations in connection with aid to dependent children and oversight of all underprivileged children as a preventive measure.

The time should come when every county in the United States will have at least one trained worker going about bearing authority which she actions finds it necessary to exert, at least in part, in giving a court record to juvenile delinquency. A worker is a boon to overburdened mothers who find their combined task of breadwinning and disciplining beyond their strength and must neglect a part of it to others. It was formerly thought that only large cities had juvenile courts and juvenile probation officers, but now counties scattered in different states are finding out how to do preventive work through these two agencies. Livingston county, Illinois, has a population of around 45,000, with its biggest town a cultured center of 10,000. Generally speaking, the people are of an unusual high type. But Livingston county has given a juvenile probation office plenty of work to keep her busy for the past nine years. The actual number of cases of delinquency brought before the court is not available over the juvenile court, and the president of the county knows that Miss Dowrie, probation officer, has the power to haul into court those whom she cannot otherwise persuade to mend their ways. Miss Dowrie says that she handles an average of one case a day in the county but only has around 15 cases a month during the entire year. Her protection is successful in 75 per cent of the cases to which her attention is given.

If a resident of any community in her county thinks some boy or girl is not receiving the proper home training the case may be reported to Miss Dowrie, who then proceeds to the home and makes such investigations as she deems advisable. Often a little friend goes with the mother or father works wonders, and when this fails the possibility of having him led into court brings the desired results. Workers of this type might well be called parental advisors, for that is the function they perform in reality. It is a service which cannot be measured by dollars and cents."

SAMUEL, CIRCUIT JUDGE AND PROPHET

COMMENT ON THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MARCH 2, 1924.

Read I Samuel,

W.M. SOUTHERN JR.
Those were wild times about 1000 years before Christ. The civilization was right. Men lived in fear of other men and might took the pleasures of the day and harsh life of even the most peaceful.

In the study for next Sunday this period is considered in relation to God. It would be much easier to make the study a biography of Samuel, little he added to those he already knew, as next to Moses in his wisdom, courage, faith and power with God. It is impossible to study the period without a study of this sturdy figure.

Always there is one picture in the Bible which stands out in my mind, why I never knew. It is the picture of a woman, prostrate in grief, her body shaking with emotion, her face turned upward and her lips moving and twisting without sound. Anna, Hannah, wife of Elihuah, the mother of Samuel, Elihuah, the High Priest saw her and thought she was drunk and rebuked her. She was drunk, but not from drink. She had read the Bible-story of the life of Samuel, born from his childhood to the time he died mourned and loathed by a nation united under his leadership.

PRESIDENT WILL STAND FIRM FOR CABINET MEMBERS

made against him can be proved. He is not going to embarrass Mr. Coolidge by giving the democrats a campaign issue on his own personal fitness or unfitness for the attorney general post, but will resign as he has four hundred reasons of his health if the oil contractors force him to resign. The chances are that Mr. Daugherty would have refuted this spring.

Dougherty a Fighter

The manner in which Mr. Daugherty issued his brief statement and ably met the national capital for Coolidge in his defense, his characteristically fighting qualities. His sole aim was the re-election, demanding his resignation but will it do so without giving him or his counsel an opportunity to be heard? Mr. Daugherty has the president's support in the course he is pursuing, and at the next national committee headquarters there is gratification that the president has not been stampeded into asking for a resignation at this time.

Looking at the question wholly from the political angle, Mr. Daugherty and Mr. Denby will both have to turn out to shovel the snow off the highway to help the road to Wisconsin, that year and still not send along sufficient snow to make the survey worth-while. After a severe storm and wind generally more than half the roads are clear of snow, but where drifts are caused the roads are blocked and cannot be done any good.

So temporarily, at least, the republican approach has been satisfied with the compromise that has been reached. Those republicans like Senator Lodge who thought Mr. Daugherty should resign will have their wish granted in a short time. Those who think Mr. Daugherty should fight back to make a defense that will at least create a division of opinion in political circles are to have their way, too.

Not Much from Telegrams
Meanwhile the investigation by the senatorial committee is proceeding, but it is not necessary anything really important. The negotiations passing between Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher, and his secretary and attorneys relative to his testimony before the senatorial committee are the natural exchanges indulged in by a man in search of legal advice, and the tales of strange things he has to advise him are exactly what lawyers expect to get—substantial fees for their services try to do when they have a perplexed client a thousand miles away from the scene of hostilities.

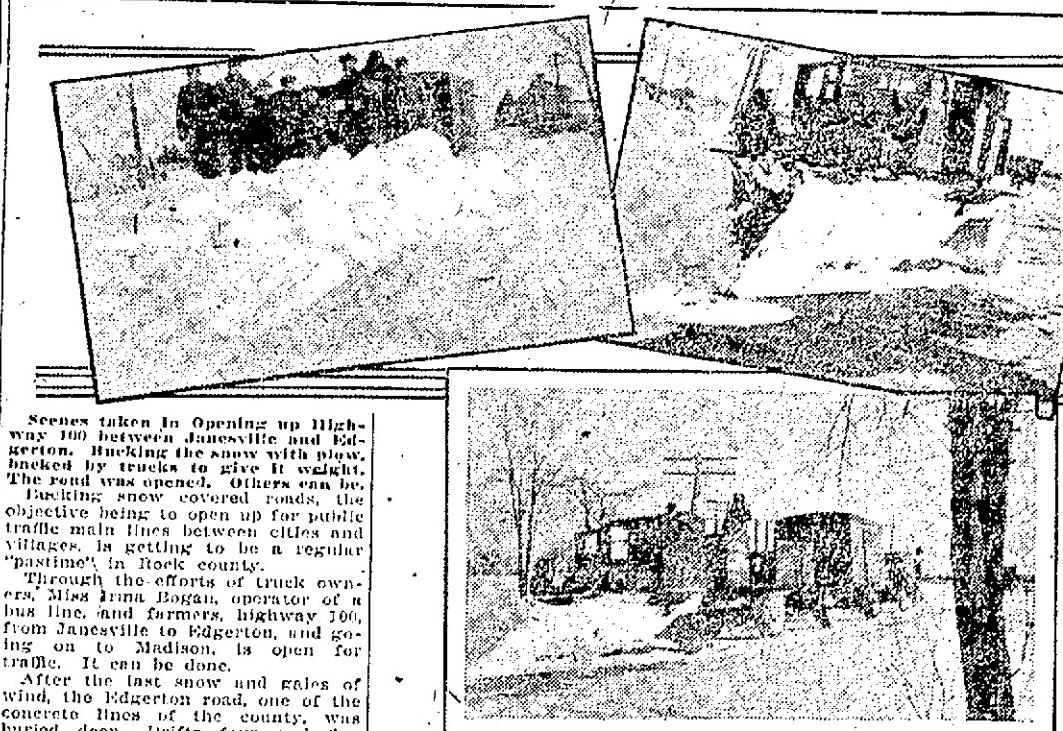

The two mysteries which the public are most interested in are the disappearance of the Ark and the secret of the Hesedim principles. It is a priestly writing and the Ark lived many years after the events recorded and wrote, not so much as histories.

Priests and the books were used to show how God took care of his people according to his own promise, how he rewarded them when they obeyed him and how he punished them when they went astray.

For forty years, perhaps for sixty years, Samuel lived to be a hundred years old, there was complete peace in Israel. Samuel acted as a judge and before him came large and small differences to be adjudicated as well as civil. He traveled from place to place, from tribe to tribe and held his court. He was a prophet of God himself a man against whom there was never a breath of scandal nor of selfishness, and he was the first man in the regard whom all the people loved and trusted and whom all honored when he died.

He founded a great school at Ramah where he lived, his ancestral home on a mountain side, 3,000 feet above the sea where he

BUT THE ROADS WERE OPENED

Scenes taken in opening up Highway 100 between Janesville and Edgerton, where the road was blocked by trucks to give it width. The road was opened. Others can be building snow-covered roads, the owners being to open up for public traffic making them safe for cities and villages in getting to be a regular "bustle" in Rock county.

Through the efforts of truck owners, Miss Irmie Bogan, operator of a bus line, and farmers, highway 100, from Janesville to Edgerton, and going on to Madison, is open for traffic. It can be driven.

After the last snow and gales of wind, the Edgerton road, one of the concrete ones of the country, was buried deep. Drifts four and five feet high barred traffic. It was a case of having a $20,000 a mile road useless until Nature was kind enough to send along a thaw. Depending on the mood of Nature did not appeal to the farmers along the way. Being isolated for several months didn't help it used to be bad in the pioneer days.

The photo in the upper left corner shows the willing force of farmers who turned out to exercise the bushy end of their shovel to help the truck drivers push the drifts near Caldwells farm. The photographs are of the big plow of Irmie Bogan and the two trucks of Krause Brothers, used to propel the plow through the drifts.

Proper use of drift barriers or fences would help materially in the combatting of the snow evil. At one time the state highway commission ordered maps prepared of sections along the state highways where it could be done to block the road. 15-CENT MEALS SERVED AT J. H. S.

450 Eat in Cafeteria Daily—Food Is Prepared by Regular Students.

Possibly no commercialized cafe in the city, were they to serve only one meal per day, would consume the quantity of food which the high school cafeteria, where noon luncheons are served each school day, does.

Surprising amounts of food materials, ranging from meats to ice cream, are purchased. At present, an average of 450 students eat their noon meals in the school building, the majority of them bringing at least a part of their lunch, with the remainder, however, purchasing their entire dinner.

Ice cream and candy are by far the most popular selling articles, and the bills for the two amounted to $285-$141.30 for ice cream and $143.70 for candy—during January, the reports for which have just been completed.

2,800 Bars of Candy.

To figure this in units, it would mean that 57 gallons of ice cream were used, and 800 cones sold. No attempt is made to keep track of the actual number of 5 cent dishes of ice cream disposed of. In the candy line, 732 ice cream cones are recorded, and dividing the candy cost by 13.70, the price of bars, would give a total of 2,874 sold. However, a large part of this item is sold in penny amounts. Various kinds of sweets are sold for a cent, but no candy bars are kept small amounts being given rather than quality being prided in the profit resulting from the cafeteria, is from sales of candy. Every other dish served, is at cost. About 1 cent is made on each 5 cent candy bar, however. It is from this small profit that the board of education intends in time to be repaid for the new cafeteria equipment, now being installed.

Milk Popular Beverage.

Milk, the only beverage sold, is almost universally purchased by the students, at 3 cents for a half pint. During January, 1,682 bottles were sold. Straws for drinking are furnished to each purchaser.

During the period, 670 large restaurant loaves of bread were used in making sandwiches, or an average of 10 loaves per day, each making about 10 sandwiches, or 120 to 200 per day. Cakes and cookies are also served, but due to the short time in which the meal must be prepared, are usually of the bakery variety. However, school-baked material is sometimes served.

Typical Menu Shows.

A typical day menu posted on a bulletin board each day, is as follows:

Cream of tomato soup.....	.03
Salmon loaf.....	.05
Mashed potatoes.....	.03
Cream of peas.....	.03

FOUR FINED UNDER PROHIBITION LAW

Chippewa Falls—Four soft drink vendors of Chippewa Falls and an average of $100 fine for repeated violation of city ordinance regulating the sale of liquor. Jail sentences from three to four months were given as alternatives in case the fines are not paid. Those fined were Troy Mills, Charles Nehls, Adam Stengel, and Thomas Hines.

Escalloped corn.....

Raisin and nut pudding.....

Gelatine pudding with fruit and cream.....

Waldorf salad.....

Cake, per square.....

Cookies.....

Ice cream or candy.....

It will be noticed that the cost of every dish on the entire menu would amount to 45 cents, or more than the average meal other places could cost. This, however, includes several desserts and vegetables.

The average student, buying his complete meal, pays 15 cents. The highest priced dish ever served is 6 cents.

Class Prepares Meals.

From the profits of ice cream and candy sold, a balance of $90.00 was turned over to the class of school for the Christmas vacation. Dec. 25, as reported for the balance Jan. 1. Up to that time, from the opening of school, Sept. 15, $1,161.00 had been taken in.

Since the commencement of school last fall, the meals for the students who make use of the cafeteria facilities, have been prepared by the class in institutional cooking, which meets at 11 a. m., giving the 11 girls and 12 boys in it, 60 minutes to prepare the large quantities of food required.

The work entails the making of about 200 sandwiches, cutting and buttering the bread, and placing the sandwiches in paper cases of 10 to 50 sandwiches, and the cooking of meat, soup and potatoes, enough to serve 150 to 200. In some instances the daily assembly period is, for some reason, held over its usual time, when only 40 to 45 minutes are given for the work. None of the boys in the class, and members of the girls, have had no cooking instruction before until this year. Miss Mercedes Stedler is instructing this class, while Miss Katherine Nienaber is in charge of the purchasing at present.

Changed Each Day.

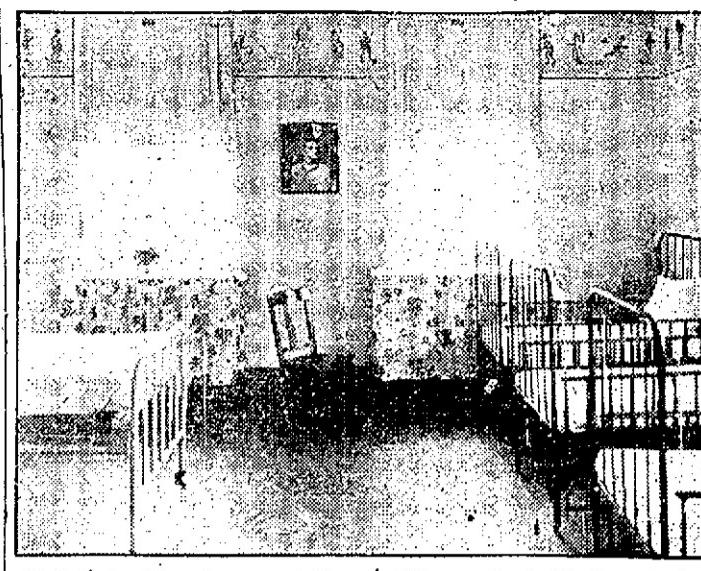

The menu is changed daily, and for a meal substitute is always served. Now, however, when fresh milk is used in the preparation of any food. The class is divided into groups of four persons, and each group spends an entire week making one variety of food, salads, vegetables or sandwiches, so that eventually all the pupils in the class are instructed in each branch. Each group also takes its turn serving in the cafeteria.

Dishes and equipment are washed by two or three girls during the hours following noon, and they are paid a small amount weekly for their work. Those who serve are given their meals.

KIWANIS ROOM AT HOSPITAL

Hope for Decline in Business at Dead Letter Shop

Through suggestions offered by postal authorities, particularly by the department of the Associated Press, a decrease in the number of letters and parcels sent to the dead letter office is expected.

According to official report, 42,000,000 letters are sent to the dead letter office annually, and the department of the Associated Press has suggested that the number be reduced to 35,000,000. Almost all are caused by incorrectly, incompletely or illegibly addressed mail.

Among the suggestions offered by the post office to insure the delivery of a letter or parcel is that it always be addressed in a definite manner, and that for cities in which there is delivery service, the address should contain the street number, or if in rural routes the route and box number. All mail should always bear the sender's address. If this one rule was always observed, it is stated, it would almost entirely do away with the work of the dead letter office.

In the parcel post department, packages must be carefully wrapped and packed, and patrons are asked not to complain if postal employees insist on this, as they are acting in the best interest of the public.

It is also stated that the special delivery service is often confused with registered mail, the latter being delivered with no insurance available against loss, but is simply to secure immediate delivery from the post office to which it is addressed.

It is also stated that all abbreviations in addresses be avoided, especially when there is any likelihood of their being misinterpreted. This applies especially to initials. Abbreviations concerning the use of window envelopes, provide that the window must be of the highest possible degree of transparency, that the address must be printed in bold characters, and that no matter other than the address may show through the transparent part.

The use of colored paper, at least on the side where the address is to be placed, is being discontinued by the post office, as it creates reading difficulty. This applies especially to folders. Regulations concerning the use of window envelopes, provide that the window must be of the highest possible degree of transparency, that the address must be printed in bold characters, and that no matter other than the address may show through the transparent part.

It is also suggested that persons intending to mail large quantities of matter, or when in doubt as to the postal regulations, or rates when sending mail to foreign countries, the postmaster or his assistants be consulted.

Many suggestions to postal employees as to the manner of improving mail service have also been sent out.

PARLIAMENT HOUSE IS OUT OF DATE

Accommodations Lacking for Members; Library Has Only Old Papers.

London—The present session of parliament with its large number of new members and the usual scramble for seats once again gives rise to grumbles and wonder why the famous old chamber is not rearranged to meet the needs of modern times.

Some 615 members are seated by the electorate of the country to represent them in a house which has no accommodation for nearly that number, and even those obtaining seats throughout the session have a hard time to find seats, own except a hat or else a small locker about three cubic feet.

In the actual chamber there is no provision for the papers of private members except a very narrow gallery which runs along the benches so that those who want to speak have to gather their papers and hold up to them. The library is said to contain only parliamentary papers instead of useful reference books; the reading rooms are small as are those set apart for private secretaries of ministers and other leaders.

Considering the increased communication between members, anyone take it philosophically and grumbles are scarcely ever translated into actual complaints.
